[name of your organization] welcomes Richard Bruxvoort Colligan on [date and time] for [event. mention here if the event is open to the public]. The singer/songwriter/theologian specializes in concerts, retreats, worship, and liturgical workshops. But he's really not as boring as that sounds. His passion is around imaginative and accessible congregational song, and making the church a vibrant, risk-taking, ever-emerging, and welcome place.

[aAnnounce the specific events the public is invited to in a short paragraph here, giving specific times and places.]

Doing what he calls "'worldmaking'" worship, Richard offers a space for community prayer and singing, his leadership engaging the heart, intellect, and the imagination to welcome all people in the heart of God.

Richard's work in contemporary hymn writing pushes the church toward radical compassion, passionate worship, and dedicated welcome. He will be joined by members of the [your church] community for the [name the event. e.g., song festival, concert].

Richard is a professional touring musician, liturgist, and recording artist. He is a graduate of United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities with a degree in Theology and the Arts; He has many recordings available, including his most recent, "The Psalm Project: Sharing the Road."

[name of your organization] welcomes The River's Voice on [date and time] for [event. mention here if the event is open to the public]. Richard and Trish Bruxvoort Colligan are singer/songwriters from Strawberry Point, Iowa, specializing in concerts, retreats, worship leading, and music workshops.

[aAnnounce the specific events the public is invited to in a short paragraph here, giving specific times and places.]

Trish and Richard offer a contemplative space for community prayer and singing, with leadership engaging the heart, intellect, and the imagination to welcome all people in the heart of God.

Trish's piano and Richard's acoustic guitar supply the backdrop for their smooth duet vocals. Their music has been described as acoustic folk-pop. Their style has been compared to James Taylor and Patty Griffin.

Richard is a professional musician and liturgist. Trish is a spiritual director specializing in retreats for women. Together Trish and Richard have 14 CDs of recorded music, including their most recent recording, The Psalm Project: Sharing the Road.
